2015-2016 ANNUAL REPORT
Dear brothers and sisters in Christ Jesus:

Last year, Pope Francis called an Extraordinary Jubilee of Mercy, inviting the faithful to reflect more deeply on the mercy offered us by our Lord and to exercise mercy more fully in our daily lives.

Throughout this Year of Mercy, I have been privileged to witness how mercy is being lived out in our diocese, and it is nowhere more abundant than in the work of Catholic Community Services of Southern Arizona. Nearly every person who comes through their doors is in need in some way, and every act of service they do for a person in need, every offer of help, and every word of encouragement is a mercy.

The mercy extended by Catholic Community Services is made possible in large part by the practice of your mercy—your giving of your means out of compassion for those struggling and suffering among us. In this annual report, you will see how your generosity is a mercy to others.

This jubilee year will soon draw to a close, but the acts of mercy we have all practiced will continue to live on in the lives of people touched by them, a sign of God’s love in their lives and in the world. Thank you for being a witness of that love.

Sincerely yours in Christ,

Most Rev. Gerald F. Kicanas, D.D.
Bishop of Tucson
Dear Friends,

In the second verse of the epistle of Jude, the writer greets his reader with a blessing, “Mercy unto you, and love, and peace, be multiplied.” In the spirit of the Year of Mercy, we extend this greeting and blessing to you for your kindness, compassion and generous support of our work.

In the course of a year, we at Catholic Community Services of Southern Arizona see thousands of people who are in great need of mercy, love, and peace in their lives. It is heartbreaking to see so many deprived of these gifts, and yet it is a privilege and a blessing to be able to impart them. We have witnessed over and over again how acts of mercy, of compassion, of aid, have generated love and distilled peace—in both the receiver and the giver.

We hope that as you read this annual report, you will see and feel the mercy, love and peace made possible by your support. May these blessings be multiplied to you again and again.

With love,

Marguerite D. Harmon, MS

- Demands personal and professional integrity, honesty, and accountability from all employees, volunteers, and Board members as stated in the Code of Ethics.
When Jesus walked the earth, people thronged to him, particularly those with a great need. They believed fervently, or perhaps just hoped desperately, that he could help them. As they came face to face with Jesus, they pleaded, “O Lord, have mercy on me.”

Jesus, filled with mercy, could not stay his hand. He saw their hardship and suffering and had compassion on them. He healed them, blessed them, forgave them, and taught them. And the people went away rejoicing, filled with gratitude and love, their burdens lifted and their peace restored.

At Catholic Community Services of Southern Arizona, many people in great need come to us, and though the words are different, they are asking for mercy. And we, taught by the example of Jesus, know how to respond.

These acts, the corporal works of mercy, help people meet their most basic needs, but in truth, they do more than that, for an act of mercy is not contained in the act alone, but in its impact. When people’s pleas for mercy are answered, they are filled with love. And when their needs are met, they are filled with peace.

“MERCY UNTO YOU, AND PEACE, AND LOVE, BE MULTIPLIED.”

–Jude 1:2

We witness every day, every month, every year how mercy, love, and peace are multiplied in the lives of the people we serve. This is what we witnessed this year:

Our agencies are:
- Catholic Community Services – Tucson

Life has not been easy for Carmen, but she has always stayed positive, counting her blessings and sharing her love and kindness with many others—even when she became homeless at the age of 61. Due to Tucson’s 42-day bus strike in the late summer of 2015, Carmen could not get to work and lost the two jobs she depended on to support herself. Within a few months, she was evicted from her apartment. She was scared and alone, but she tried hard not to let those feelings overcome her. Carmen spent her days doing odds jobs and volunteering at the Armory Senior Center, as she had done before, and even began volunteering at Pio Decimo Center. Most nights, she stayed in a homeless shelter, though some nights she had to stay outdoors. Fortunately, her plight did not go unnoticed. The senior housing staff at Pio learned of Carmen’s situation and found that she was almost 62, the minimum age necessary to live in Pio’s permanent housing for low-income seniors. They processed the paperwork right away, and within weeks of her 62nd birthday in February, Carmen moved into her new home. She enjoys the closeness she now has with the other seniors, particularly those who feel lonely. And she’s grateful for the greater security she now has with a rent she can afford with the work opportunities she has. “I’m very comfortable knowing I won’t be homeless again.”

Moriah’s mother was a drug addict for as long as Moriah could remember, and it took a huge toll on her young life. At 13, Moriah was taken into foster care. She moved from group home to group home, finding nothing to calm the raging inside her. After four years in foster care, she ran away to rejoin her mother, got addicted to meth, and started a destructive cycle all over again with her own 7-month-old baby girl. A tip-off to police, however, set her on a different course. They gave her a choice: lose her child or go with her child to live at CCS-Tucson’s Merilac Lodge and get her life in order. Moriah was determined to keep her baby and chose Merilac Lodge, but she wasn’t happy about the conditions; she hated the rules, the expectations, the drug tests and treatment, the classes, the limitations on her time with her daughter. But slowly, as she got sober, and with the constant support and love of the staff, Moriah began to see that a better life was possible. She learned things—how to resolve conflicts, parent her child, and manage money. She saw that a life free of drugs was just a whole lot easier. After two years at Merilac Lodge, Moriah got full custody of her daughter and moved into her own apartment, things she never could have accomplished without Merilac Lodge. “I don’t know where I’d be today or if I’d even have my baby with me. The staff stood by me from day one. I am so grateful to them!”

After two years at Merilac Lodge, Moriah got full custody of her daughter and moved into her own apartment, things she never could have accomplished without Merilac Lodge.
Catholic Community Services - Yuma serves Yuma County with meals for seniors, counseling, domestic crisis services, adult day health care for the elderly and disabled, as well as the Arizona Families FIRST program.

When Daniel first came to Daybreak, CCS-Yuma’s adult day health program, he was relatively young. A gunshot to his head while he was in his late 30s had disabled him for life. For several years, Daybreak provided the health care and social interaction Daniel needed as well as the respite his wife needed. But when he and his wife moved away from Yuma, Daniel had to say goodbye. He always remembered, however, the good times he had at Daybreak and wanted to return there if he ever moved back to Yuma. Thirteen years later and after a divorce, he did return to Yuma, but not at first to Daybreak. He was placed in an assisted care facility, but did poorly there, becoming very depressed and unwilling to eat. Daniel’s sister Pauline was determined to give him a better quality of life. She brought Daniel home to live with her and arranged for Daniel to return to Daybreak. It was a dream come true! It took him a while to adjust, but today Daniel has lots of friends, takes part in activities, and enjoys the meals served to him. Pauline is pleased to see Daniel so happy. “Daybreak is such a bright spot in Daniel’s life. It’s been a huge contributor to his quality of life for many years. He really loves it!”

It took him a while to adjust, but today Daniel has lots of friends, takes part in activities, and enjoys the meals served to him.

When Julie’s 10-year-old daughter was removed from her custody because of suspected child endangerment, Julie was beyond devastated. She knew she had mental health issues, but she didn’t believe they were affecting her ability to parent her daughter. Either way, she knew that she would do everything the Department of Child Safety (DCS) required to get her daughter back. It was all very daunting, and Julie felt utterly overwhelmed, but she found an ally in the staff members of CCS-Sierra Vista’s Family Preservation program. They were supportive, non-judging, and gracious, which meant a lot to Julie as she worked through all the DCS requirements. These included getting mental health treatment and participating in CCS-Sierra Vista’s parenting education programs. Julie’s separation from her daughter was nearly unbearable, especially since she knew how unhappy her daughter was, but the CCS staff kept her going. With therapy, her mental health improved, and finally, after eight months of separation, Julie was reunited with her daughter and her DCS case was later closed. In reflecting on the whole ordeal, Julie says, “I wouldn’t have made it without the people at CCS. They were a light at the end of the tunnel and their generosity and kindness will stay with me forever.”

Catholic Community Services – Deaf & Residential Services are provided by four organizations in Arizona and New Mexico that seek to maximize independence for people with hearing loss or developmental disabilities. Community Outreach Program for the Deaf in Tucson (COPD) and Albuquerque, NM (COPD-NM) and Valley Center of the Deaf (VCD) in Phoenix provide services for Deaf, DeafBlind and Hard of Hearing persons. The Community Living Program (CLP) in Tucson provides residential living supports to people with developmental disabilities.
When Elizabeth learned at age 15 that she had Usher Syndrome, she could hardly accept it. She had been born Deaf, and now she learned that her eyesight would slowly deteriorate as she grew older, taking away her independence and leaving her isolated from the world around her. The future looked bleak, but as the years went by, Elizabeth resolved not to let her condition hold her back. She has worked, gone to school, even attended the Helen Keller National Institute, where she learned Braille and how to use new devices to communicate. Elizabeth is now 48, and though her vision is significantly impaired, she is leading a meaningful and productive life. This is made possible through the vital support services provided by Community Outreach Program for the Deaf, New Mexico Office. The most important of these services is the help of a Support Service Provider, a companion trained in tactile sign language who goes with Elizabeth just about everywhere and helps her interact with other people and with the context or environment she’s in. COPD also provides Elizabeth with a case manager, interpreting and vocational services, and social activities with the DeafBlind community. Elizabeth is highly active in this community, serving as the president of the DeafBlind Association and working with other similar organizations. COPD’s services have had a huge impact on Elizabeth’s quality of life, helping her stay connected with the world. “Because of COPD, I’m happier, I have a degree of independence, I have activities and the support I need. They have definitely improved my life!”
THE KOLBE SOCIETY

The Kolbe Society was established to respond to the spiritual needs of the men, women, and youth incarcerated in the many jails, prisons and detention centers within the boundaries of the Diocese of Tucson in southern Arizona. It has expanded to provide spiritual support to the families of the incarcerated, the families affected by crime, as well as the men, women, and youth being released from these institutions.

The Kolbe Society began as a ministry inside the Pima County Jail and has grown to almost 100 volunteers who are ministering in almost all of the jails, prisons and detention centers in the diocese. Today, we offer approximately 70 services per week, ministering to about 900 men, women, and youth each week.

The Kolbe Society follows a Restorative Justice model of service. Father Richard Landry, M.S. offers a special Labyrinth Program to offenders, families of the incarcerated and victims of crime in order to bring about restoration, renewal and reconciliation within the community.

The Kolbe Society also has a ministry that offers sacramental opportunities to inmates, a ministry to their families which provides spiritual support and a shuttle service to help families visit their loved ones who are incarcerated in prisons outside the Tucson area, a Re-entry Ministry to provide support services to people released from prison or jail as they transition back into society, and a Victims Ministry to address the needs of people affected by crime.

THE ST. JEANNE JUGAN MINISTRY WITH ELDERS

This ministry is focused on developing and supporting parish-based ministries throughout the Diocese of Tucson to support the increasingly large numbers of Catholics moving into assisted-living communities. The ministry supports pastors and lead volunteers in recruiting and training ministers to help carry out parish outreach for elders. This includes being Church through visitation and taking the Eucharist to those who are living in nursing homes, staying in the hospital, in hospice care or are otherwise homebound due to illness or mobility challenges.

The program’s director, Manny Guzman, coordinates regional trainings and outreach throughout all regions of the Diocese to raise the importance of this work of the Church through development of a Spirituality of Aging. The program’s chaplain, Father Ray Ratzenberger, visits nearly 20 nursing homes in the Tucson Metro Area over the course of a month with the assistance of volunteers. The ministry is named after St. Jeanne Jugan, the foundress of the Little Sisters of the Poor who operate skilled living facilities throughout the world for elders.

THE ALITAS PROGRAM

Throughout the year, the Alitas Program continued serving weary migrants after they were released from Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) with temporary legal status. Migrants were brought to Casa Alitas, where they could rest, clean up, eat, find new clothing, review their travel itineraries, and get supplies for their journeys ahead. Last year, the Alitas program assisted 492 families of over 1,130 people, many of whom were unable to stay in ICE detention facilities because of extenuating circumstances such as advanced pregnancy or inadequate English or Spanish skills. The program has also agreed to accept unaccompanied minors who “age out” of youth shelters. Instead of being sent to an adult detention center, the youth can be brought to Casa Alitas where they can stay for a few weeks while volunteers help them contact family members and make travel arrangements.

All of the migrants that have come through the Alitas program have been blessed by its hospitable and welcoming spirit. Kindness and the acknowledgment of their human dignity have strengthened them in a very difficult journey.
